Free Natal Chart Report

The following free birth chart tool lists planet signs, house positions, and aspects. It also allows you to compare multiple house systems. (The default house system is Placidus).

You will only find some interpretations right now (many of the major factors, such as Sun, Moon, Ascendant, Mercury, and Venus in signs and house), but I am working on adding more interpretations frequently, so please check back here from time to time!

The interpretations in the following birth chart report are written by myself, Annie, and are typically expanded interpretations already found on this site.

*Note: The free report on this page is an alternate free interpretive report that is meant to supplement the Cafe Astrology's Free Report section which is still fully functional with multiple free reports, including natal, transits, and compatibility.

*Important: Under normal circumstances, you don't need to change the time zone offset that appears after you enter your birth location. Please don't adjust the time zone offset unless you know for certain what you're doing since the default offset incorporates crucial factors (such as daylight savings time) and is in the majority of cases accurate. Planets and Points in The Signs

Sun in Leo 3° ♌ 52' 54"

The Sun in the chart shows our character, personal identity, and ego. It represents our will to live and our creative life force. Just as the planets revolve around the Sun in our solar system, we derive our life purpose from the Sun in our natal charts. The Sun is our “adult”– the part of us that censors our “inner child,” reasons things out, and makes final decisions. The Sun also gives clues to our overall vitality. The Sun directs us and can be considered “the boss” of our chart.

When people ask you "What's your sign?", Leo would be your answer. Technically, though, it's your Sun sign that is Leo, and you're made up of many signs.

There's an unmistakably regal air to Solar Leos. These are dignified—even noble—folk.

Leos have a reputation for being conceited but think again. Leos do feel important, but this often takes the form of wanting to change the world in some way—to make the world a better place. Affection for people motivates Leos, and they often have big dreams and plans to make people happy.

Leos are usually hard-working. After all, they are attracted to the good things in life, and they know they have to work to get them. It is sometimes difficult to imagine Leos as go-getters if you happen to catch them in one of their languid moods. These people can sleep in, laze around, and luxuriate for long periods of time. However, when they do get to work, they do it with intensity and determination. In this way, they are not unlike their symbol, the lion.

As a Leo, the worst thing someone can do to you is accuse you of bad intentions.

Displaying behavior that makes you think they don't appreciate you runs a close second. You're happy and jovial but quickly hurt when others don't see you for your noble intentions.

Loyal, and sometimes rather traditional, your Leo sign is, after all, a part of the Fixed family. You'll hold on to situations and people for a very long time before you give up. There is an unmistakable idealism to your view of the world and the people in it. You're likely to have a very noble inner code that you answer to.

Although on the surface, Leos appear rather confident, they can actually be some of the most humble souls around. They are the first to blame themselves when something goes wrong. Once again, it's the Leonine self-importance at work, and this characteristic works in unexpected ways. Instead of being the conceited, self-absorbed show-offs of reputation, they are usually very self-aware, self-conscious, and, yes, even humble.

Of course, there are also some Leos who roar loudly when they're not getting the attention they feel they deserve. These Leos are wonderfully flamboyant and light up a room with their specialness.

Leos can be the life of the party or the quieter type, but however they approach the lead", "I rule", "I create", and "I will". They are rulers, leaders, actors, and entertainers at heart. Leos are generally honest, determined, persistent, and ambitious.

As a Leo, you are unlikely to want to be just another face in the crowd or part of a team. You don't like to be compared to others. As a Fire sign, you are vibrant, fiery, and emotional or impulsive, but you have a stronger measure of self-control than other Fire signs. You inspire others, and you take responsibility seriously.

Your Sun sign is modified by various factors, including the aspects it makes to other planets and points, its house position, and the house with the sign the Sun rules (Leo) on its cusp. These positions add more layers to the Sun in Leo interpretation. Leo is a Fixed Fire sign. More on Leo.

Ascendant in Sagittarius 10°  05' 48"

The Ascendant defines, in part,  the first impression we make on others in a personal rather than professional sense. It represents our physical appearance, our physical bodies and overall health, and the body ego. It can be the mask or costume we wear to greet the world. It reveals our natural and personal defense mechanisms that we use to adapt to - and cope with - our environment. The Ascendant also shows our first impressions of the world around us and our expectations of same -whether we are naturally hesitant or enthusiastic, for example. How we begin new projects and our attitude towards new experiences come under the rule of the Ascendant.

With your Sagittarius Ascendant, you see the world as filled with adventure, new things to experience, and, most of all, hope. There is an unmistakable faith and enthusiasm with Sagittarius rising people. Grand schemes, big promises, and a willingness to explore and experiment are themes, although follow-through is not a strong characteristic of this position. Of course, other factors in your chart can modify this, but taken on its own, Sagittarius Ascendant may at least appear to be a free spirit.

You are enthusiastic, a good sport, and friendly. You are somewhat restless and often active. You always seem to be looking for something that is just out of grasp -- and many people who share this Ascendant with you do this their entire lives. You can be quite direct at times, yet you are likable enough to be forgiven for their faux-pas. You are likely to have a lot to say and offer. Your insights and opinions are usually interesting and exciting, although sometimes lacking in details.

You have opinions about everything, and you just love telling others exactly what they are! Not all people who share this Ascendant with you are outgoing folk, but they all have a way of moving about that at least exudes a certain level of confidence. Some might even call you naive or overly optimistic. Even the quiet ones don't shrink from life and from experience.

You are drawn to or attract talkative, mentally-oriented, and youthful (at least in spirit) partners. While you certainly have a fiery, physical approach to the world, you also place a lot of value on intellectual compatibility. A partner should be adaptable, as you prefer to live your life with options open. Spontaneity is important to you in general and a stubborn or sedentary partner may be difficult for you to handle as a result.

People generally find you approachable and are attracted to your spontaneity and sincerity. Others must learn not to take what you say or how you express yourself too personally - you seek to express the truth, and it's more philosophical than anything, as you have no interest in hurting others' feelings.

You seek answers and share your ideas and beliefs, and you're often one of the first to come up with new thoughts on matters. You can be quite wise and you can usually rise above petty matters. You may thoroughly dislike routine. Physical characteristics vary but often Sagittarius Ascendants have a lot of hair when young but have a tendency to bald later in life. You may be known for a hearty, infectious laugh and a huge smile. You may have a somewhat disheveled, haphazard appearance.

You like to keep your options open! You aren't at your best if you're tied down or cooped up. You are always ready to cheer up others around you. You're also always learning and growing, or seeking to do so.

One of the most obvious and endearing traits of this position is your willingness to keep up a sense of humor. Even when you're feeling low, you manage to find humor in life and have fun with whatever you do have. You always seek out inspiration, and you can be very inspiring yourself! You need to feel that there's some meaningful goal to work towards or something better off on the horizon for you, but you can be quite resistant to planning things out.

The placement of Sagittarius' ruling planet, Jupiter, will give more clues to how you go about expressing yourself, how you appear to others, and your first responses and instincts to new situations. Jupiter in Capricorn or in hard aspect to Saturn, for example, might give a more sarcastic approach, but underneath there lies an unmistakable hope and spirit for living. Moon in Pisces 26° ♋ 15' 11"

The Moon in the signs reveals much about our habits, reactions, and instincts. It shows how we express and deal with our emotions. Most obvious in our homes or in private when we're feeling comfortable, our Moon sign reveals our innermost needs. The Moon can represent our experience of nurturing; it also shows how we nurture ourselves! It's important to note that Moon signs change every 2 or 2-1/2 days, and on some days, can be one of two signs, in which case an accurate birth time is necessary.

Those with the Moon in Pisces are known to be dreamy and not always in touch with reality. However, though you may not always show real-world savvy in day-to-day, practical affairs, you make up for this with remarkable intuition. You can put yourself in anybody's shoes with extreme ease. On the plus side, this endows you with remarkable compassion and love. The downside with this apparent ability to break down boundaries is that you can easily lose yourself in the suffering of others.

With your Moon sign Pisces, your sense of humor is delightfully silly and a bit odd. You are a perceptive soul who seems to be in touch with all the nuances and subtleties of human nature. Often this comes through in a strong sense of humor that is more of the receptive kind than the type of sense of humor that would make people the "life of the party." It's generally pretty easy to get them laughing. Crying, too!

Moon in Pisces people may get tagged as "spaced out," but there's a lot more to them than meets the eye. They feel things out and rely quite strongly on their intuition. It just doesn't feel right for them to do otherwise. Their dreaminess can mean plenty of moments of absent-mindedness. These times of oblivion can land them in all sorts of predicaments with others who can too easily misunderstand these complex souls. Without plenty of space and time to daydream, Pisces Moons easily get overloaded in life. Give them room to be alone with themselves, and they're generally able to take on the world--even if their style when they do so is not always conventional or understandable.

Generally considered soft-hearted and sweet, you care about others and are easily touched by human suffering. This tendency can gain you the reputation as a sucker for a sob story. Although this may sometimes be true, you learn in your lifetime how to discern between sincerity and manipulation. Still, you definitely do have plenty of soft corners.

This is a powerfully creative and artistic Moon. It's also one of the most understanding and nuanced combinations.

There's a delightful accepting side to Moon in Pisces that is sometimes mistaken for weakness. Pisces is the twelfth and last sign of the zodiac, and thus carries with it a little of each sign of the zodiac. As a result, Pisces sees themselves reflected in the behavior of others, giving them seemingly boundless compassion. Since the Moon represents our instinctive nature, Moon in Pisces seems to know how things feel without actual experience. They may have never experienced something but still seem to understand it -- even, or especially, the subtleties of it. The ones that aren't too shy make awesome actors. The ability to empathize even in the absence of experience gives them an open mind and heart. Most long to express this through writing, music (both listening and making), poetry, and art --in fact, the more satisfied people with this position do just that. Nevertheless, this is a searching Moon sign that is often divinely discontent!

Though some are doormats, most Pisces Moon people instinctively know when they're due for a much-needed recharge. It's at these times that they retreat from the world (and its harsh realities) if only to gather strength to face everything and everyone again. Solitude is important to them, but they also need people, so their retreats will usually be short-lived. Pisces Moon individuals believe; and, let's face it, the world needs Piscean leaps of faith.

You are a bit of an escapist or avoider. You don't always feel equipped to face things head-on. Although your intentions are usually good, a potential weakness is your ability to "get out of" things. When you are emotionally present, though, you are a wonderfully entertaining, understanding, and kind-hearted person to be around.

Mercury in Cancer 16°  50' 51"

What's your style of communication? How do you make decisions? How do you pick up, process, absorb, and exchange information? These questions are answered, in part, by Mercury's placement by sign in your natal chart. Someone may be an assertive Aries, but they could also have Mercury in Taurus, with a style of communication that's slower, patient, and not quite as spirited as one would expect from an Aries, as an example. Mercury refines the Sun sign, and it helps to define how we take in--and give out--information.

With Mercury in Cancer in your birth chart, you communicate with feeling, conveying a sensitive, withdrawn, and thoughtful nature to others.

No matter how free-spirited the rest of their natal charts may be, Mercury in Cancer people can be very subjective and personal, or they opt not to talk at all. They are slow to respond at times, giving others the impression that they are deep thinkers. In truth, you are probably exactly that. Cancer is a meditative and reflective sign. Even so, you are likely much faster at forming opinions and making decisions than you appear. Because you listen so well to others, this speed is not always noticeable.

Your memory is awesome. You remember almost anything, from your personal past to a casual conversation you had two months ago. Your memory is a little skewed in the direction of emotion. The truth is, you remember the mood surrounding all the moments you have stored away in your brain. This is because you feel people out when you talk with them. The words are not as important to you as the emotions and intentions behind them. Note also that you talk with people not to them.

As a Cancer communicator, you come across as gentle, intuitive, and sentimental. Sometimes, you can be quite defensive, as you often take things personally. You make others feel very warmed and protected. This may be in your voice (solid yet soothing), and often it's in your message. There can be times when you come across as if you're hiding something, which can get you into more trouble than you perhaps deserve.

You retain a lot of information, and you learn best when you feel emotionally balanced. You may prefer to focus your concentration on subjects, and approach problems in a step-by-step manner, "feeling out" an answer. This natal chart position gives the gift of rhythm and beat.

No matter what your Sun sign (and it can only be Gemini, Cancer, or Leo since Mercury never travels very far from the Sun), you seem to have feelers. You pick up people's emotions in conversations. You are the best listeners of all the signs. In fact, it is extraordinarily easy for you to become "lost" in the other person's expression and opinion. For a while, you can almost lose your own opinions and completely step into the other's shoes.

Others can count on you to come up with information, culled from your outstanding memory, that others have long forgotten.

Your style may be to avoid arguments. But, make no mistake about it, you can provoke arguments more readily than you realize. This can happen subtly, and when others argue with you, this can take you off guard and hurt your feelings.

You're likely attracted to poetry, archaic language, expressions of yesteryear, and the like. Because you are so aware of others' emotions, you're often diplomatic in your dealings. You may need to step away from others and be alone with yourself to explore all that you've absorbed and before making a decision or forming an opinion. You might often ask for time to stew over new information. You are impressionable, and it helps to know this and accept it. Withdrawing into yourself helps you to discriminate.

You might become frustrated with facts-only thinking processes. You also dislike distractions when you're talking or thinking. You need to focus on the matter at hand in order to come up with the best solutions to problems, making multi-tasking difficult and chaotic. You can be an effective speaker and writer, especially if you also have a Leo or Gemini Sun. Your ability to respond to your audience is remarkable. You have a knack for presenting your ideas concisely, yet powerfully.

If this is the only personal planet in Cancer in their chart, you may come across as more personal and sensitive than you actually are.

Venus in Virgo 17° ♍ 40' 32"

How do you attract things, situations, and people into your life? Venus rules our sentiments, what we value, and the pleasure we take in life.

Grace, charm, and beauty are all ruled by Venus. Through Venus, we learn about our tastes, preferences, artistic inclinations, and what makes us happy. We look to Venus in the natal chart to see how we approach relationships of the heart, as well as what gives us pleasure. We also turn to Venus to show how we spend our money, the types of gifts we buy, and how much we spend on leisure activities (not to mention the kinds of leisure activities we seek). Venus rules attractiveness--both the ability to attract and attraction to others (and things). Venus rules, amongst other things, the arts, love and romance, beauty and the beautifying process, money, entertainment, leisure, sensuality, and comfort.

With your Venus in the earthy, mutable sign of Virgo, you're not an especially flirtatious sort. Instead, your appeal lies in your dedication and your willingness to make a relationship work in real terms. You're not inclined to want to impress your lovers with grand gifts or promises. Your gifts are less showy but perhaps far more generous -- gifts of devotion and attention to details regarding a partner. You're inclined to quietly (and perhaps slowly) make your way into someone's heart!

You're quite sensitive in love, perhaps a little insecure because you're so aware of all of your flaws, and this reserved or loner-like quality can be part of your appeal. Even if you are confident, assertive, or flashy in other areas of your chart/life, there is a distinctly down-to-earth, practical, and service-oriented theme when it comes to love, money, and pleasures or pastimes--the main areas of life ruled by Venus.

You prefer to play it safe in relationships, and you need to be confident that someone likes you before you make a move. You can be a great listener, and you make it a habit to observe and learn all of the ins and outs of a person you love. You may "show" your love by nagging or criticizing, however, but you're not typically trying to hurt someone when you're pointing out the flaws in their thinking, plans, or even character. You truly are worried and trying to help! You may be attracted to those who are nondescript who have largely gone unnoticed. Show-offs or know-it-alls are usually turn-offs.

For a partner to please you most, it's vital they let you know that they appreciate you for all the little things you do, and you do so much! The problem can be that you do these things so quietly at times that a partner may not always notice or give you credit for your kind gestures. You do need some space--after all, you're usually very busy making everything work! A partner should be genuine, not pretentious, to grab your attention.

You are really not so difficult to please, although your practicality and overthinking could make you seem that way. The key is to make you feel wanted and useful. Even if you're confident in other areas of life, you're inclined to worry or fret with love and/or money, so that it's better that a partner not push you too much. You can be a little shy about wholeheartedly expressing your affection or sharing your relationship with the world too quickly. You aim to please, and you're easily intimidated by a partner's other or past experiences, even if you have an intellectual curiosity about these things. If a partner lets you know just how much they value you, however, you'll reward them with devotion and a charming willingness to talk things out and make things work. Perhaps most of all, you aim to make yourself invaluable to a lover.

My Personal Ad Bio: "I will care for you, and do lots of little things for you. I will help you."

You express your love through practical gestures--running errands, doing detail work, giving advice, offering reminders, or just being there for someone. Love needs to make sense and have a purpose with Venus in Virgo. Virgo is an Earth sign, which is sensual but also quite practical. Your purchases and the types of entertainment you enjoy are ruled by whether or not they add practical value to your life. You'll appreciate, more than most, a gift of a crockpot or vacuum, for example, over a bauble. You might feel guilty if you're too self-indulgent, in fact. Venus in Virgo people often spend their money with care, and usually on practical items instead of frivolous ones.

Rendering services to others can fill a real need and can be an expression of love for you. The shadow side of this position involves being overly critical of partners, picky, or worrisome. You might over-analyze your partner's reactions and words, as well as your love life in general.

You are dependable and true blue, although perhaps a little inhibited, stiff, or awkward with big displays of affection, at least in public. You'd rather show your love in active ways than to pour out your heart to them. Watch for underestimating your lovability, as you'll be selling yourself short. You may worry you're not exciting or flashy enough for a partner. Following a routine and keeping things in order are things that help stabilize and comfort you in your relationships.

Mars in Gemini 16° ♊ 10' 05"

Mars is the planet that rules our drive and passions. In the mutable air sign of Gemini, Mars in your chart is a little scattered and unfocused, but quite adept, adaptable, and bright. Easily bored, you may need a fresh change of pace frequently to keep energy levels up. It's a somewhat odd thing, really, but when there's nothing much to do, you're exhausted. However, if there's plenty of exciting things on your agenda, you're a powerhouse! More than most people, you have a physical reaction to boredom.

You have a passion for words, and when you get angry or fired up, you use words as your "weapon." Angry communications--some of the most incisive and sarcastic ones--can fly around for the more assertive or energetic types with this position. Others not as aggressively inclined talk things through--energetically! Whatever is the case for you, you seem to need to get everything off your chest when you're fired up.

In fact, debates are a Mars-in-Gemini specialty. You can readily draw on your sharp wit to win arguments. In general, you can be talkative, and perhaps very much so. If your natal chart shows more reserve, you seem to go in and out of talkativeness, becoming chatty when you're worked up or enthusiastic about something or the other. You prefer to use words rather than force. You may also prefer mental tasks to physical labor. You'd make an exceptional teacher of topics you love.

You can be quite skilled at communicating, whether in your speech or writing, or both. There is a colorful, animated, or enthusiastic quality to your communications, although you can be moody or your verbosity is cyclical. You're clever and a quick learner, but you don't always have the patience to go very deeply into specific subjects. Your skills are many, and you can be very resourceful. Your output is variable, as you can work at lightning speed when inspired and move on to something else when bored. You're given to short bursts of activity. This Mars placement is the position of the multi-tasker.

Some people with this position of Mars are quite fidgety. They have much nervous energy. In general, their nervousness and restlessness are at the root of many physical ups and downs. When they're on edge, they can be nitpicky. Many Mars in Gemini natives channel their energy through their hands. Gemini, after all, rules the hands; and these people often express energy through musical instruments, crafts, video games, and the like. Many are attracted to puzzles and games as diversions—and they're quite skilled at them!

With Mars in Gemini, you can be very adaptable, often thriving on change. In a more conservative chart, this will show up on a mental level. You usually take up many projects at once, spreading yourself thin at times. Sustained interest is not especially the forte of this Mars placement—you'd need some helpful Saturn, Capricorn, and Taurus influences for follow-through, and if not, you'd benefit from attempting to focus your energies rather than scattering them. However, your versatility and disdain for routine generally mean you're busy and interesting. Your first instinct is to use your wit, words, social skills, and intelligence to achieve your desires and goals.

Jupiter in Scorpio 5° ♏ 41' 14"

With Jupiter in Scorpio, you seem to attract the most fortune when you put your “all” into a project or undertaking, draw on your inner strength and courage, and use your magnetic powers to heal others.

You are enthusiastic for deeper studies and meanings, all that is taboo or mysterious, psychology. You value decisiveness, intensity, willpower, commitment, and strength. You are a very strong problem solver who cuts to the chase. Science and research may be prosperous avenues for you.

As a Water sign Jupiter, you have a strong belief in a higher power. You are most able to attract luck and rich life experiences to you through your intuition, imagination, and compassion. Helping those in need boosts your morale.

Saturn in Pisces 11° ♫ 29' 15" R_x

Saturn in Pisces is somewhat complicated given the vast difference in natures of the planet and the sign. You can feel uncomfortable with what seems to you to be excessive shows of feeling or vulnerability/weakness. However, by not fully allowing yourself these very human qualities, you end up limiting yourself. In truth, you will do much for the underdog, but you don't feel comfortable feeling like you are one. As such, if someone extends you anything that even mildly resembles pity, you are quick to shut it down. In the process, however, you subtly convey to others that you don't need kindnesses, compliments, and support, and you could end up feeling quite alone. You might also feel somewhat annoyed by people who seem to play the victim, or on another level, are too "out there" with their spirituality.

As you're not thrilled about things or situations that make you feel out of control, you may be more adverse to the use of mind-altering substances than most.

Because you feel some inhibition related to emotions, you can end up with more than the usual vague feelings of anxiety, guilt, or fear of the unknown because you've rejected them or don't always process and fully identify with them. Lacking some faith or trust in your intuition (or life itself), you can frequently feel vaguely fearful. Watch that you're not holding onto problems that are not yours or for feeling unreasonably guilty.

Another side of this sign is that you may often take on the role of the supporter—the strong one. This can also lead to feeling somewhat alone or unsupported. You may feel more comfortable offering tangible help and advice than emotional shows of support. You care, but find it hard to let yourself go on this level. In time, as you recognize how you may limit yourself and your experiences, you learn to identify with the vulnerable, messy, or chaotic side of yourself step by step, slowly but surely.

More clues and refinements to your Saturn lessons in life come through Saturn's house position and aspects.

Uranus in Capricorn 23° 57' 55" R_x

You're most interested in making changes, innovating, and updating traditions related to government, management, rules, laws, career, business, responsibility, and authority. You seek more freedom in or through these areas, and you don't feel the need to conform. You may believe in breaking through some of the inhibitions or taboos related to traditions, formalities, hierarchies, respect, and structure. Despite the need for progress, you can be very stubborn and set in your ways in these areas. You may challenge authority or rules and laws in place only if they are no longer serving a good purpose or if they're seen as limiting progress, seeking to revolutionize the ways we manage our lives and societies, as well as our careers. This is a highly resourceful placement.

Neptune in Capricorn 21° 37' 43" R_x

Your vision of an ideal world may center around respect for rules, order, responsibility, and morality. You need to believe in the realizability of your dreams, and this means that your fantasies usually have a very realistic thread to them. There is a conservative, possibly somewhat cynical element to your nature. Because a general optimism or faith do not typically carry or motivate you, energy levels may not be high when you don't believe in what you're doing, and inspiration is not easy to find in the first place. However, you can turn a dream into reality more than most. Your vision is practical but also doable.

Pluto in Scorpio 25° ♄ 18' 12" R_x

Your feelings about intimacy, sexuality, dependency, attachment, and support are intense. You can readily go to extremes as you seek a deeper connection to someone or a special project or goal. The quest to distinguish yourself in any of these areas can be so fraught with pressure at times that you rarely allow yourself to feel content and satisfied. You may need to work harder than most to let yourself to be anything less than strong. You are not afraid to call evil for what it is. You are a rare combination of compassionate and practical. With Pluto working at its best, you are brilliantly perceptive and understanding--quick to see the many different layers of any given situation.

Chiron in Virgo 8° ♍ 57' 04"

You are wonderful and skilled at helping others with interesting tidbits about improving their lives, particularly "life hacks", and you can thoroughly enjoy assisting others to get organized, but you may not always pay the same attention to or apply your ideas to your own life, frequently feeling a little behind, disorganized, and overwhelmed.

Black Moon Lilith in Taurus 12° ♀ 19' 24"

You may have felt shame for self-indulgence, not sharing, holding onto possessions too tightly, or for enjoying yourself without apology. You may feel guilty or wrong for doing these things, which can lead to all sorts of behaviors, whether it's about hoarding, purging, or in between these extremes, but feeling ashamed for indulging oneself or getting comfortable is the bottom line. As a result, you may have a hard time feeling truly satisfied or sated, but you also fear the state of wanting. Perhaps you were punished in some manner for being slow, savoring things, or enjoying and indulging yourself, and now you feel wrong whenever you do. Empower yourself by accepting your genuine, human needs to languish from time to time.

North Node in Scorpio 20° ♏ 42' 33" R_x

One theory behind the Nodes of the Moon (the North Node and South Node) suggests that we all come into this world with some underdeveloped and overdeveloped aspects of our character. The Nodes of the Moon point us to these specific qualities: the South Node represents our overdeveloped character traits that we automatically fall back upon. We're talented here, but if we overdo this area of life or hold onto these traits to feel secure, we may undermine our lives or prevent growth. On the other hand, the North Node suggests the qualities that we need to work on and develop to achieve inner balance.

With the True North Node of the Moon in Scorpio, your South Node is in Scorpio's opposing sign, Taurus.

This position can give the tendency to be overly self-reliant and set in one's ways. You may fall back on clinging to your possessions and habits, or you can be rather fearful of crisis or excessively focused on security. You may default to attempting to achieve your goals through willpower, not always stopping to consider your sixth sense and intuition. Learning to loosen the grasp you may have on your stuff, the people in your life, or the methods to which you're accustomed can help you open yourself to your soul's needs for transformation, change, and regeneration. In the first part of life, you may experience difficulties in partnerships because you may expect that others have or should have the same values as you do, but this can close you off to intimacy and sharing, and ultimately compromise the security you so crave. It would benefit you to avoid relying only on your instincts to support yourself and learn to share yourself more often with others. If you remain fearful of taking chances or if you continue to resist change and others' input, you could find yourself unhappy or limited. Moving out of the seemingly solid and stable material world can seem intimidating. But clinging to things or situations that are either outdated, limiting, or that run counter to our growth will keep you in a state of lack. Releasing yourself from your attachment to doing things your own way will contribute to inner balance and satisfaction, and this is then reflected outward.

Part of Fortune in Leo 2° ♏ 28' 04"

Bringing your personality, spirit, an element of fun, and creativity to what you do seems to be most fulfilling and successful for you. You find success and joy when you can entertain, share yourself, express generosity and warmth, and display self-assurance. You tend to take charge, the lead, or center stage, and ventures that allow you the opportunity to do these things are often your most fruitful. Fields that involve jewelry or adornment, play, self-expression, drama, sports, and fashion can appeal and prosper.

Look to the Sun, planetary ruler of Leo, for more clues to where and how you improve your lot in life.

Vertex in Taurus 3° ♉ 10' 39"

Midheaven in Leo 24° ♏ 03' 10"

You need to feel in charge of your destiny, and you're a natural manager or leader. A lot of heart and personality go into your career, responsibilities, reputation, or life path goals. Your ego is also strongly involved!

With a Fixed sign Midheaven, you don't take a path or career lightly, and you don't readily jump onto or off a track. You do things with extra flair or drama. You're proud, and the image you project is something you need to feel not only good but great about. Whatever you feel on the inside, you project an image of confidence to the public. You prefer to be the boss or, at the very least, dictate your own direction.

You stand out rather than blend in. In fact, you shine in what you do, and you make a strong personal mark in your field. You can be skilled at self-promotion, but you also project such a warm, strong image that others want to promote you as well.

You can also be quite organized when it comes to planning and long-term objectives. With your career, you're determined, persistent, honorable, competitive, and passionate. Often feeling like you are on stage, you enjoy performing and gaining recognition. You also expect a lot from yourself, and you want the best-- and to be the best-- in your chosen field. Once in a position, ideally an important one, you're exceedingly loyal and committed.

You might see your parents or caregivers as especially strong personalities, with one far more outgoing and personal than the other.

The Sun's position in your natal chart by sign, aspect, house, or condition, can give more clues to how you present yourself professionally or publicly and how you approach your responsibilities, long-term goals, status, and reputation. It can also point to your career potential.

Planets and Points in The Houses

Sun in Ninth House

The Sun's house position modifies and refines its position by zodiac sign. With the Sun in the ninth house of your birth chart, you have a deep need to understand the world around you. You have high ideals, and you always seem to have an eye on what's on the horizon. You are looking ahead, and at times can seem quite restless or perhaps discontent with the ordinary as a result. You are proud of your knowledge, beliefs, or morals. Be sure to avoid self-righteousness in your enthusiasm to share your knowledge. You might also watch for optimism that goes too far, since you may overshoot. With care, you can be an unusually tolerant, adventurous, and curious person, and you want to see the best in people and life itself. You possess considerable faith and hope. This position is often found in the charts of outdoorsy or otherwise adventurous people. Some might call you a free spirit. The ninth house is associated with higher education and knowledge, philosophy, travel, and publishing.

Moon in Fifth House

The Moon in the houses can reveal where and how we go about seeking emotional satisfaction. If it's an issue, we can discover vital clues to the reason for perpetual emotional unrest through the study of the house position of the Moon, and these can manifest as constant changes or ups and downs in the areas of life ruled by the house. It is in these areas that we should aim to make deep attachments rather than chase superficial and temporary emotional thrills if we are seeking out a genuine feeling of belonging and emotional fulfillment. It's important to note that house positions are quite sensitive to birth times.

With the Moon in your fifth house, you love to share emotional experiences with loved ones and have a flair for the dramatic. Love affairs are magnetic and intense, and you don't take them lightly by any means, although you may go through considerable change through your romances. You are attached to children, whether they're your own or not. Your creative hobbies are subject to relatively frequent changes, and you have innate artistic talent.

You have a vivid imagination and are given to daydreaming often. There is a sense that you are always in touch, or trying to get in touch, with your inner child.

If the Moon is challenged (forms difficult aspects for the most part), you may have problems with impulsive shopping or gambling, or with numerous love affairs that never fully satisfy you. In any of these cases, you are more attached to the game than the player, and this is something to work on if you are looking to find true fulfillment. You might take risks just for the fun of it, but in the process, you are irresponsible to others and yourself. This is something that you tend to grow out of with life experience.

This position of the Moon is warm, friendly, personally popular, humorous, generous, and entertaining. People notice you, and you might often enjoy entertaining others, or imagining you are on show. This is one of the most emotionally colorful house positions for the Moon. Your heart needs to be engaged first in a romantic relationship. You are attracted to heartfelt pursuits and entertainment -- you most appreciate an emotional story or emotionally-charged piece of art. Your hobbies are rich. In fact, without a satisfying hobby, you could feel very restless and dissatisfied.

Mercury in Eighth House

You are especially curious about what motivates people, as well as all that is mysterious, taboo, secret, and psychological. You are excellent at analyzing people and getting at their motivations, and you're interested in cause more than effect, in general. You also excel at developing strategies. You may have a sound mind for finances, medicine, and other subjects that require research and investigation. You speak with authority, and others listen, having strong persuasive powers which should be used carefully. You tend to feel that everything people do and experience has a purpose. You have a great, investigative, and penetrating mind and you are excellent at analysis. You put others at ease about expressing their feelings or desires through your understanding nature. You're also capable of keeping secrets, which is uncommon!

These traits are Mercury in the eighth house in pure form and are modified by Mercury's sign and aspects. [Note that house positions are highly dependent on birth time.]

Venus in Tenth House

With Venus in the tenth house of your chart, you can be an excellent negotiator. You are very skilled, and thoroughly enjoy, managing and organizing efforts. For some, a profession in the arts is favored, and for others, your ability to get along with others is a boon to your career. Your reputation is likely favorable. Others tend to respect you for your charming manner, and you have many admirers, although some of these are admirers from afar, as there is an aura about you that is charming yet strangely (and intriguingly) distant.

You have a great need to be recognized or admired for your charm, beauty, or loving manner, but should be careful not to become too wrapped up in what others think of you, as you might come across as phony or superficial. Some people with this position are “married” to their work or to their image. You are good at making contacts and organizing social events. This is a generally favorable position for financial prosperity.

Mars in Seventh House

With Mars in the seventh house of your natal chart, you need a partner who challenges you, and your close personal relationships can be especially passionate, active, or physical. You may be drawn to people who are more assertive or aggressive than you. Alternatively, you find/discover your own assertiveness through a special someone.

There can be a marked impulsive tendency in your one-to-one relationships. Certainly, you need your connections to maintain a high level of passion and energy. You can be particularly good at mediating, counseling, troubleshooting, debate, politics, or working with the law.

Jupiter in Twelfth House

Jupiter in the twelfth house as it is in your chart is often considered the guardian angel position -- you tend to be saved sometimes just in the nick of time, probably due to your inborn faith in the universe. Solitude, working alone, and meditation can bring you great pleasure and a sense of rejuvenation. You are merciful and generous, often anonymously. You are extremely supportive and you're a hero in a time of need.

Saturn in Fourth House

With Saturn in the fourth house of your birth chart, your roots, family life, home, and nurturing are serious matters for you. Stability and security are vital to you, and you'll work hard to achieve these things.

This placement often occurs in the charts of those who don't readily move or move far from where they were born. Psychologically, there can be issues with feeling tied down or stuck in a rut. Success in your personal life tends to improve with time and age.

This position, if challenged, is associated with anxiety and eating or digestive disorders. Something in your early experiences gave you the idea that you should keep your feelings in or deprive yourself of fundamentals, and you could struggle with rigidity. If you dealt with too much responsibility, coolness, strictness, or ultra-conservative energy in your early life, over time, you might work on managing deep fears of not being loved or approved of. Building your ability to nurture and self-nurture comes more naturally as you go along. Another important lesson to learn revolves around making changes rather than sticking with what's familiar. Teaching yourself to open up to change can involve making small efforts to step out of your comfort zone.

The desire to build something long-lasting, such as a legacy, can be strong. This is not just a passing whim, but a deep-seated drive within you. Owning a home or land can be a goal, and you have the potential to achieve it. You prefer to prepare for the long term and old age, and your careful planning can lead to a fulfilling and successful life. You can be well-suited to various fields, such as construction, counseling, anthropology, archaeology, manufacturing, and real estate work, where you can make a significant impact.

It can be powerful to work on your deep-rooted insecurities, which stem from feelings of a lack of support or of being burdened, isolated, short-changed, neglected, or misunderstood. Addressing your tendencies in later life to isolate or deprive yourself can be very worthwhile. Breaking down walls can be a powerful process as you mature. You'll likely go above and beyond to create a safe space and successful life for yourself and your loved ones.

Uranus in Second House

You have Uranus in the second house of your natal chart. Your approach to money and security is not just different, it's uniquely forward-looking and unconventional. Your methods in the natural world, business, gardening, cooking, and sensuality are offbeat, setting you apart from the norm. In these areas, you strive for more freedom, never feeling the need to conform.

Breaking through inhibitions and taboos related to sexuality, food, and love of comfort comes naturally to you. You're an innovator in these areas. However, when it comes to collecting things, personal belongings, and money matters, you can be quite stubborn and set in your ways. You might view money as a means to buy freedom, or you could be unusually detached regarding personal possessions and finances. It's not uncommon for you to lose or misplace things. Instead, you can be drawn to unique, offbeat items that you collect.

Your intuition guides you when dealing with practical matters, especially money and possessions. This placement is often associated with financial ups and downs, or a moody and changeable approach to income. A rebellious feeling about ownership might be at the root of this. You can be impulsive when it comes to spending, giving things away, and making acquisitions. Your priorities and values don't always align with tradition, as you think outside the box in these areas. You also have a keen sixth sense for business or finances.

Neptune in Second House

You prefer not to attach too much value to money, but if this is overdone, there can be quite a few problems in your life concerning money and ownership. You might make money through artistic pursuits, but you should watch for the potential pitfalls of putting too much faith in ideas that don't have enough grounding in reality. In this case, financial advice is imperative to obtain.

You may develop a non-materialistic personal philosophy. This can certainly work well for you, particularly if Neptune is well-supported in your chart. However, it could also lead to impractical attitudes and money problems. When it comes to making money, you tend to act on hunches and intuition. You might have faith that you will come into money one day, or daydream a lot about being wealthy! The trick is to have faith in your own self-worth. If you frequently have money problems, you might want to examine whether you truly are not attached to material things, or if at the root of your personal philosophy, you are actually undervaluing your worth or value.

When Neptune is in good condition in the second house, there can be a sense that you are wealthy no matter what you actually have, and this faith can bring you exactly what you need. If Neptune is challenged, you may be glossing over practical details, and money can too easily slip through your fingers. You might be unusually generous, but avoid situations where you get the short end of the stick financially speaking if they lead to feelings of resentment.

Pluto in Twelfth House

You are inclined to go deep, to explore the meaning of your dreams, and to analyze your personal psychology. You're also quite adept at comprehending others' motives. You may discover that you have healing powers and that you tune in quite quickly to others' struggles and vulnerabilities, understanding more than most. You may become deeply involved when helping others, perhaps even at your own risk at times. You consider others' backstories and have a strong empathy as a result, with a sense that we're all quite capable of good and evil. You may, however, keep very many things to yourself, which could eventually impact your health. Ask yourself if some of your secrets are truly necessary, as your first instinct may be to keep things to yourself when a more direct approach would be less complicated. Watch, too, for being your own worst enemy. A perhaps hidden part of you may be seeking a challenge or to push your boundaries, and if not understood and managed, you may jump into troubles impulsively or be the victim of unconscious reactions that undermine you. You might have more unusual, peculiar, or serendipitous experiences in your life than most others as a result of this. This position is sometimes associated with powerful or unexpected enemies. It can also indicate dark, intense dreams--more so for you than most.

Chiron in Tenth House

With Chiron in the tenth house of your natal chart, your sensitivity to your status, standing, or the expectations others have of you can sometimes be a liability, but it's also behind some of your great strengths.

You have a strong sense of structure, direction, rules, and boundaries. You are terrific at guiding and helping others structure their lives and motivating them to apply themselves to reach their goals. However, applying these concepts to your own life can be challenging. You may shy away from achieving your potential or taking a solid stand or direction. You might go in the opposite direction and "go hard" in these areas, only to find that you never quite feel responsible or accomplished enough. Early experiences such as traumas may be behind this vulnerability or hypersensitivity. Perhaps you were expected to act as an adult when you were a child, for example.

Explore why you can find it hard to discipline yourself or appreciate your own contributions, but you are fantastic at helping others discipline and organize their lives. You feel incredibly responsible, often to your detriment. Do consider that you expect far too much from yourself, and this can be a source of unnecessary stress.

This placement can sometimes point to taking on a Chiron role in the public or in your career, or being a healer, guide, or working with marginalized populations as your calling or profession. Your own experiences can compel you to help others in these ways. Certainly, take your life path or purpose to heart, often feeling drawn in a particular direction. Your reputation is of being one-of-a-kind.

Black Moon Lilith in Sixth House

North Node in Twelfth House

The theory behind the Nodes of the Moon (the North Node and South Node) suggests that we all come into this world with some underdeveloped and overdeveloped aspects of our character. The Nodes of the Moon point us to these specific qualities: the South Node represents our overdeveloped character traits that we automatically fall back upon. We're talented here, but if we overdo this area of life or hold onto these traits to feel secure, we may undermine our lives or prevent growth. On the other hand, the North Node suggests the qualities that we need to work on and develop to achieve inner balance.

With your North Node in the twelfth house, your South Node is naturally in the sixth house.

You are an expert at handling your practical affairs. Watch for overanalyzing things - your path is to believe, take a leap of faith, let go of the need to control, and focus on emotional health, not just physical. Allow yourself to surrender to the unknown from time to time. This is your path to greater fulfillment.

Part of Fortune in Ninth House

With the Part of Fortune in the ninth house of your natal chart, your good fortune comes from your ability to see the silver lining, look ahead, and consider the bigger picture. You can be talented at guiding, teaching, sharing, and inspiring others with your vision. It can be particularly rewarding for you to seek truth, meaning, and new ideas or adventures. There can be life-changing, eye-opening, and mind-broadening experiences, education, or travel. A sense of joy comes from the feeling that you're growing and improving.

Vertex in Sixth House

With the Vertex in your sixth house, you can feel that fate brings you to positions of service, organizing, teaching, and healing. Others might turn to you for guidance, advice, health matters, and information-gathering.

Aspects

Sun Trine Moon (orb 7°38')

With the Sun and Moon in harmony with one another in your natal chart, generally speaking, your emotions and will are at peace with one another, suggesting a reasonably balanced personality. The "messages" you received in childhood were explicit, or at least not contradictory overall, and you have a stronger sense of purpose and appreciation of harmony than most people. You can be personally popular, likely because you expect harmony in your relationships. You are unusually open to relationships, and you're attractive to others. A certain level of self-confidence and a sense of security make you quite easy to deal with on many levels. Your relaxed, easygoing disposition puts others at ease.

Because your expectation of harmony is well-developed, you may not be prepared for conflict, and you might often avoid rocking the boat. In fact, you may often acquiesce, if only to maintain a feeling of balance and harmony. After all, conflict is something you not only dislike, it's something you may fear. In some ways, you may be too accepting—of yourself and others. You may benefit from questioning life more often, or you run the risk of taking things for granted.

Your vitality is usually good and quite constant. Unless other parts of your chart strongly suggest otherwise, you are not a very hard-driving person, but your constitution is strong. You seem less prone to the kinds of ups and downs that plague those with challenging aspects between the Sun and Moon. This is because your goals and emotional needs are in harmony, despite being different. You have a fantastic ability to understand your limits, and this positively impacts your life in many areas.

Sun Square Jupiter (orb 1°48')

Note: this aspect points to a challenge. Keep in mind that personality challenges are opportunities to learn, adjust, grow, and excel.

While your intentions are noble, the Sun-Jupiter square aspect in your natal chart may lead you to overextend yourself. It's important to remember that this is an opportunity for growth. For instance, you might overlook practical details, accumulate debt, indulge in excesses like food and drink, and make commitments beyond your capacity. However, as you gain experience, you might discover that stopping once you're ahead sometimes is doable and leads to greater success.

For the most part, you find help for your excesses. Because your heart is in the right place, others are often there for you. Of course, if excessive behavior becomes a pattern and you continually face light consequences, the danger is bypassing the lesson and relying on getting an "out." However, many people with this aspect avoid falling into the trap of losing their sincerity.

The tendency to live beyond your means remains a challenge, as do mood swings. You can go through periods of intense highs when you are excessively optimistic. These periods are so marked that they could seem unnatural, and a fall seems inevitable. It's crucial to commit to balancing your outlook. Another possible problem with this combination is making promises you intend to keep but having problems with following through. Watch for overplaying your hand, as your hopefulness and vision are wonderful traits as is. Self-control is important to cultivate. Watch for an addiction to the sensation of hope or optimism, as this can convince you to push too far.

Your innate qualities are truly remarkable. You are generous and helpful and a beacon of inspiration for others. Your humor and fun-loving nature bring joy to those around you.

Knowledgeable and giving of your time, you have many talents--aim to discover them!

Sun Conjunction Part of Fortune (orb 1°25')

Sun Square Vertex (orb 0°42')

Sun Trine Ascendant (orb 6°13')

With your Sun trine the Ascendant, a wonderful air of warmth and authority surrounds you. You could have a marked interest in the performing arts and/or sports and games, whether as a spectator or participant or both. This is an especially favorable aspect to have for those who are in the public eye. You come across as someone to take seriously but also likable and appealing.

Unless other more difficult aspects dominate this energy, you generally find it easy to gain the cooperation of others. You naturally lead and direct. Your ability to gain cooperation is a strong suit, rendering your social interactions reassuring and confident. Generally, you have strong vitality and a solid constitution. Although these qualities are innate, you may take them for granted, only recognizing these potentials later in life.

Moon Sextile Uranus (orb 2°17')

Moon Sextile Neptune (orb 4°37')

Moon Trine Pluto (orb 0°57')

Moon Trine North Node (orb 5°33')

Moon Quincunx Midheaven (orb 2°12')

Mercury Sextile Venus (orb 0°50')

Mercury Trine Saturn (orb 5°22')

Your mind is well-disciplined when it needs to be, and you possess strong powers of organization and orderliness. You are good at detail work. With Mercury in harmony with Saturn in your natal chart, you are a person who says what you mean and means what you say, and you can be baffled by, or impatient with, those who don't.

You are very trustworthy and reliable, showing up on time for appointments due to basic respect for others and for schedules and orderliness. Certainly, you make a loyal friend.

You are capable of exceptionally clear and realistic thinking. Making plans comes naturally to you--you consider consequences and possible scenarios before arriving at a decision or embarking on something entirely new. You are somewhat of a doubting Thomas, and you don't naturally jump up and down with excitement about new ideas or plans. Your conversations may, at times, be spare but to the point.

Mercury Opposition Neptune (orb 4°47')

Mercury Trine North Node (orb 3°52')

Venus Square Mars (orb 1°30')

Venus Trine Uranus (orb 6°17')

Venus Trine Neptune (orb 3°57')

Venus Sextile North Node (orb 3°2')

Mars Square Saturn (orb 4°41')

With Mars square Saturn in your natal chart, you might often feel your desires are denied or blocked. The challenge is to temper, moderate, and control your energy, anger, and desire nature more smoothly.

You can be determined to achieve your goals, and you'll work hard for them. However, it's not always easy to pace yourself or choose the right time to push ahead, especially in your youth. Over time and with maturity, you learn more strategies to moderate your energy. Until then, going hard at the wrong times can produce some real ups and downs.

In relationships, timing can often be a problem. For example, you may come on too strong or retreat or withdraw at all the wrong times. Getting this right is a challenge.

Blowing hot and cold can be a frustrating theme. Insecurities and self-defeating tendencies can be a struggle. Mars-Saturn people can take on too much or shoulder far too much responsibility. They can often feel imposed upon. Treating yourself and others with patience and grace is an essential strategy.

People with Mars square Saturn can feel they face more obstacles than most to achieve their desires and goals. You can have strong compulsions to bow out of your pursuits, but doing so can lead to further struggles. You should probably examine whether these urges are self-sabotaging. Oppressive circumstances in early childhood may be behind this.

You should also watch for taking unnecessary risks. Somewhat accident-prone, you may have more scrapes and bruises than average. Physical issues often relate to overstraining. You can become so absorbed in a pursuit that you ignore your need to rest or take a break from it. Difficulties with authority figures can be a theme. Getting something started or deciding on a definite course of action can often be a struggle--because you take your actions and plans so seriously, settling on them can be a heavy, drawn-out affair!

Dealing with anger, resentment, and self-assertion can be a struggle at times, and people who don't know your full story could sometimes see you as harsh, unfeeling, or insensitive. Of course, this image can further work against you.

With Mars square Saturn in your natal chart, you have a strong sense of duty, even if you sometimes feel overwhelmed by it! Over time, you learn to assert yourself and pursue your desires with discipline and moderation. Achieving your goals can sometimes be complicated or lengthy, but it comes with great rewards.

A primary key to managing this Mars-Saturn aspect lies in accepting and working with your limits on physical and desire levels. Tempering the need to be in total control is also important, as relaxing this compulsion can reduce stress tremendously.

Mars Opposition Ascendant (orb 6°4')

Jupiter Trine Saturn (orb 5°48')

With Jupiter trine Saturn in the birth chart, you are an excellent student of life, taking important lessons from your experience and applying them to the present. You are able to see both the possible benefits and pitfalls of a potential enterprise or venture, and this keeps you from becoming overly optimistic or overly pessimistic. You learn from your mistakes - a trait that is not as common as one would think!

You are generous but not unreasonably so, and you are judicious without being too strict. Moderation is the beauty of this combination -- you instinctively know that moderation is the key to happiness and success.

This is generally considered a fortunate aspect and is one indication of a strong ability to put your ideas into action and a good possibility of material success. There can be a knack or propensity for law, travel, and history. Qualities of this combination that are considered talents but that can always benefit from extra attention and development: patience, realism, practicality, credibility, modesty, and fairness.

With Jupiter forming a trine to Saturn in the birth chart, you believe that you get what you give, and you're ready to put in the effort to achieve your goals. This aspect gives you a natural air of maturity or poise. Your outlook is reasonable, as you rarely stray into extremes of pessimism or optimism. You also set reasonable goals for yourself, a practice that, in many ways, shields you from some of the ups and downs of life due to exaggerated expectations. It follows that because you rarely throw caution to the wind or put all your eggs in one basket, especially for high-stakes, high-risk endeavors, the rewards may not be sky-high. However, this cautious approach provides a sense of security, as you aim to protect yourself from big losses, and that's important to you.

You might enjoy updating or carrying on traditions in positive ways. Your deep respect and reliance on the wisdom of the past or your elders is a strong part of your character. In business, you recognize a good deal. Taking care of your "future self" is important to you. You aim to be fair and even-tempered.

Jupiter Sextile Chiron (orb 3°16')

With Jupiter forming a sextile to Chiron in the birth chart, you're a brilliant teacher or guide. You convey your ideas in a compassionate, understanding, and positive way. It's almost effortless for you to understand others' perspectives. You teach or guide gently.

You feel extra compassion for the underdog and the misunderstood. Sharing your ideas, thoughts, and experiences can be therapeutic. You're particularly offput by hypocrisy, and you're willing to learn, change, and grow. You aim for more mindfulness, and you can thoroughly enjoy experiences that raise your consciousness.

This aspect is one indicator of a positive mindset—you pick yourself up from a fall quickly. You might have an early experience of a limitation that taught you that you can rebound from a setback stronger than you were before. You're resourceful.

Uranus Sextile North Node (orb 3°15')

With Uranus forming a sextile to the North Node in the birth chart, you gravitate to new technologies and unconventional ways of living.

Your path is to be willing to be different, break some conventions, innovate, and learn healthy detachment that helps you embrace change. Fortunately, you adapt quickly to changing times and social conditions, making the most of these turning points.

At some point in your life, you recognize the need to strive to better the world around you, not only your personal space. When this occurs, your life is fuller.

Friendships often happen suddenly for you, and they emerge at just the right moment in your journey--it can feel magical. People are drawn to your unique personality. Your quirkier or more unusual ideas and qualities are received well.

You are not a follower. If you disagree with a current fad or idea, you simply don't adopt it without fanfare. Indeed, you're often the one who comes up with plans on how to move ahead in any stuck situation. You readily adapt to life's twists and turns. Intuitive and insightful, you're often in touch with the latest happenings, or you are drawn to progress. You have a knack for presenting your unique qualities in a pleasant package.

Some notes about this birth chart calculator:

- ☒ Please be patient when entering your birth city to allow the program to call up the list of locations as sometimes it's not instantaneous. If you're just not getting results and can't submit, it may be that the atlas is busy (GeoNames has certain limits per hour and per day). In this case, you can use this same tool on my sister site, Astrology Cafe here.
- ☒ It's important to enter the city name only or the first several letters of the city in the Birth City field, not the country or state/province/region. For example, if you were born in Fuzhou, Fujian, China, you should enter "fuzhou" or similar and not "fujian" or "china." It's better not to overtype – for best results, type in the CITY name and scroll through the list for the correct city.
- ☒ *Important: Under normal circumstances, you don't need to change the time zone offset. Please don't adjust the time zone offset unless you know for certain what you're doing since the default offsets incorporate crucial factors (such as daylight savings time), and are in the majority of cases accurate for births after 1970. There are some discrepancies in all historical time zone atlases, particularly for birth years before 1970, however, so if you need help with the time zone offset value, send an email to reports@cafeastrology.com. Be sure to mention why you're writing and include full birth data. *Note that the atlas in this software is not as particular about historical time zones (before 1970 births) as the atlas in our Free Report Section, but is excellent for post-1970 time zones. It is always a good idea to check up on older dates since time zone changes, especially regarding Daylight Saving Time, were erratic in some areas and not well-documented.
- ☒ I have received many emails from people who feel they should be changing the +/- value of the time zone offset number, quoting time converter formulas. Doing so will give you incorrect results. Please see the FAQ here for the reasons not to change the +/- value. Bottom line: astrology software converts local time to UT and not vice versa, and the +/- values produced by this software are correct.
- ☒ Note: if there is an error in the Geonames atlas service (that is, if the service cannot find the time zone temporarily), the UTC offset will state "false" instead of a numerical value. Before pressing Submit, please change "false" to the appropriate time zone numeral. If you need help with determining this number, write to reports@cafeastrology.com.

Do you prefer Whole Sign houses? If so, you can create your free natal chart report with Whole Sign houses here. We also have a birth chart generator that draws the chart using Koch houses and using Equal houses.

You can also produce a free chart wheel with a list of planetary positions only (without the interpretations).

See also Cafe Astrology's Free Reports site, including full interpretations of the natal chart, transits, and compatibility.

Note about house systems: If you're new to astrology, simply stick with the Placidus house system on this page and later in your studies, you can explore different house systems. Mind you, many astrologers do end up sticking with Placidus after further study. Using Placidus is not a sign of an unevolved astrologer, in other words, as some will have you believe!
